Our Life as a Gift

Building Self-Identity through Wonder

The rise of anxiety and chronic depression, especially among young people has led many to question why the modern self-identity seems so fragile. The Canadian philosopher Charles Taylor contrasts a modern version of self-identity, how one sees oneself, with an older view of the self, one more open to grace, nature, and the divine. In earlier times, people discovered who they were through family, community, faith, and shared history. The modern self, by contrast, builds walls of independence, separating identity from family, tradition, and the sense that life might be shaped by something greater than ourselves. The modern self-identity claims a radical independence.

Young people, especially, may think they have a self-made identity. Trying to claim independence isn't really a new phenomenon. However, as we mature, we should see that no one is really independent of their culture. Today's secular and technology-driven world creates its own issues. Social media tempts us to measure our worth by likes, clicks, and followers. What appears to be freedom — the power to define ourselves — often hides a deep insecurity. We become dependent on the approval of others to measure our own self-worth.

Psychiatrist and author Iain McGilchrist offers a similar insight. He argues that modern culture has come to be ruled by the left hemisphere of the brain — by analysis, control, and abstraction. We live by models and metrics, forgetting the living reality they were meant to represent. What Taylor calls the modern self, McGilchrist describes as the “left-hemisphere world,” one that values mastery over meaning, efficiency over relationship, and control over wonder.

Taylor invites us to remember the moral and spiritual realities that give life its direction. McGilchrist calls for a “revolution in attention,” an awakening to the world as gift, something to be received with gratitude rather than managed or consumed. The challenge of Taylor and McGilchrist is deeply personal: Do I approach life as something to control, to measure, or to quantify, or as something to receive with wonder and humility?

Reality is always larger than our ideas about it. Life is not a project we invent but a gift we are invited to live. Meaning, beauty, and love are not things we create; they are already woven into the fabric of existence by our Creator. Our sense of the sacred — our longing for connection, our intuition that life means more — these are the whispers of grace calling us to a greater identity.

The fragile, anxious self of our age is healed not through greater self-definition but through deeper belonging: to God, and through Him, to one another. When we receive the truth that we are beloved children of a generous Creator God, everything begins to change. We grow freer, more loving, and more at peace. And like St. Paul, we can begin to say with quiet confidence, “It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me.”

31 May 2026
+ Feast of the Most Holy Trinity

On Tuesday of this week the building and grounds committee will be meeting with Michael Eslinger and Market & Johnson to finalize the schedule for the demolition of the front steps and construction of the new addition to St. Joseph Church. Preliminary indications are the beginning of demolition is the first week of July. It is likely that June 28th may be the last 10:30am Sunday Mass in Boyd until we reopen sometime in December. I will give you the exact date when, after we meet on Tuesday.

The plan is to continue with weekday Masses in Boyd on Tuesdays and Fridays. The front entrance will no longer be useable. The only accessible entrance will be the single door on the west side of the church. We can continue with weekday Masses because of the few people that attend. It is also important to note that once the demolition begins there can be no funerals or weddings until the church is reopened. Families will have to choose which of our other two churches they want to use. Funeral directors will have to do the same. One important note is that All Saints Parish Hall in Stanley is always open to parishioners for funeral dinners at no charge. The funeral does not have to take place in Stanley.

In addition to these changes, we are likely going to have to suspend broadcasting the Sunday Mass on our radio station until we are able to move back in to St. Joseph Church. We will continue to broadcast the Tuesday and Friday morning Masses. Please let those who rely on the radio broadcast know. There are plenty of opportunities both on local television and internet for Sunday Mass.

This weekend I celebrate my 45th anniversary as a priest. As I said last weekend, I will be thanking God the Father for those he has given me to serve (that's you), in fellowship with Jesus, the true high priest, in union with the Holy Spirit. What a day to celebrate my 45th anniversary of priesthood on the Feast of the Most Holy Trinity.

Blessings and best wishes,

J. Qui

Source—Stewardship Reflections by Catholic Stewardship

--- May 31, 2026 ---

The Solemnity of the Most Holy Trinity

Today we celebrate the Solemnity of the Most Holy Trinity — the central mystery of our faith.

Though the Trinity is a profound mystery, it also reveals something practical for us as Christian stewards. The Trinity, as a communion of Persons who give themselves completely to one another, shows us that self-giving love is at the heart of the stewardship way of life.

In our Gospel, we hear, “God so loved the world that he gave his only Son.” God's self-giving love calls us to respond by giving ourselves in love and service to others, fostering a sense of meaningful purpose.

The more we give of ourselves in love, the more we experience “the grace of the Lord, the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit” within us.

This Triune God invites us into a deeper relationship with Him — one that deepens as we live actively in gratitude and self-gift through stewardship.
